I have the following Dataframe: import numpy as np import pandas as pd import datetime dfl = pd.DataFrame(data = {'date': ['2019-09-14', '2019-09-14', '2019-09-14', '2019-09-14', '2019-09-14', '2019-09-14', '2019-09-14'], 'col1': [11, 14, 15, 17, 18, 19, 23, 25], 'col2': [12, 14, 15, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22]}) dfl = dfl.sort_values(['date', 'col1', 'col2'], ascending=[True, False, False], inplace = True) col_values_dict = {'col2' : dfl.col2.map(lambda x: np.nan if x == 'NaN' else x), 'col1' : dfl.col1.map(lambda x: np.nan if x == 'NaN' else x)} col_dict = {'col1': dfl.columns} dfl['col1_array'] = dfl.col1.map(col_values_dict.get).fillna(dfl.col1) dfl['col2_array'] = dfl.col2.map(col_values_dict.get).fillna(dfl.col2)

Subban 6-Point Theory Every off-season, people like to debate the pros and cons of trading for New York Rangers forward Alexander Radulov. A healthy Alexander Radulov is a 35 goal scorer, who has almost double the points as Jimmy Vesey did during his rookie season in the NHL. My contention has always been that Radulov has the 'it' factor. He's an entertaining player who can light up the ice with his skating, puck control and the ability to shoot the puck. As the saying goes, Radulov could "light up a TV screen". The New York Rangers are a dangerous team with the likes of Chris Kreider, Kevin Hayes, Jesper Fast and Mats Zuccarello in their top nine, even without former Norris trophy winner Marc Staal in the lineup. The Russian winger has the ability to play centre, so could essentially be a first line centre. Would you make this trade? New York Rangers - Alexander Radulov for... New York Rangers - James Neal New York Rangers - St. Louis Blues' prospect Wayne Simpson New York Rangers - Paul Stastny (St. Louis Blues' top 8) [the_ad id="7969?][the_ad id="6613?] As for the Blues, they've been active this off-season as they brought in Kevin Shattenkirk from the Washington Capitals and Patrick Marleau from the San Jose Sharks. This is my 6-Point Theory for the Blues. 1. Grab Paul Stastny (2018 - 3rd overall pick) who is projected to be a top 9 forward for the Blues. Stastny can bring immediate offence (45 goals in the last two years and a career-high 52 goals last season) to the Blues' second line. 2. Grab Wayne Simpsain from the New York Rangers. This is a late-round pick the Blues acquired from the Blues (the pick they got from the Vegas Golden Knights in the William Karlsson deal). Simpsain is a highly-skilled sniper. It would be dangerous to have a talented Russian sniper on a line with Bob 570a42141b
